Cheat Sheet

One of the most POWERFUL Girl-friend magnets you can use is the “Magic Moment” Magnet.

Magic Moments are where you create a small experience with a woman that she will remember - and want to tell her girlfriends about.

This is key, because once she’s told them, you will usually win their support. And this will only solidify your standing.

In the next few pages I’m going to briefly outline the best magnets for you to use.

Customize these and use them yourself. I’ve used them for years, and they ROCK!

Magic Moment: Chivalry

Make no mistake about it - women LOVE it when guys open the door for them and do a multitude of small things that dote on her.

In this age of distorted feminism, guys everywhere have been fooled into believing that women gave up this desire in order to “equal” men in the workplace.

That’s utter bullshit.

Chivalry is all about respect for women.

More than ever, women hunger for guys to do the small things that make them feel like “princesses.”

Some of the small things you can do are:

- Open/hold the door for her.
- Pull her chair out for her, and push it in as she sits down
- Stand up when she comes back to your table
- Ladies first - let her go first
- Give her your arm to hold

Remember that if she doesn't like anything chivalrous, that's a red flag for you. Watch out!

Magic Moment: Cold Read

One of the most effective strategies you can use - and it's truly magical from a woman's point of view - is to seem to know something about her that she has not told you.

The best way is to make a statement that can apply to just about anyone, but SOUNDS specific.

These are called "cold reads" or "Barnum statements." (After PT Barnum.)

Doing this is actually pretty easy. The key is simply to be just a tiny bit observant. Which is surprisingly difficult for most men since they're all caught up in their own heads.

Look at her clothes, her hair, her jewelry... Listen to her voice, how she talks... Watch her body language. She's giving you a TON of signals as to who she is with these.

I'll give you a couple easy cold reads you can use and memorize, but you really want to tailor them and make them more specific.

Really, cold reading is just taking an educated guess about someone. And it's magical to women when you get even slightly close.

Here's one for you:

"You like to act all proper, but you have a real bad-girl streak in you..."

VERY few women will deny this one, partly because it's what she wants to believe.

Another:

"You like change and variety and don't like to be hemmed in by restrictions and limitations."

Cheat Sheet

Again, something that every woman wants to believe about herself.

The real power in these comes when you turn a vague insight into more specific insight about her.

You will be unforgettable when you use this technique with the next one:

Magic Moment: Divination

This includes:

- Palm reading
- Tarot cards
- Handwriting analysis (which is legit, it works!)
- Numerology
- Astrology

If there's one thing that women eat up like whipped cream, it's anything that hints at telling them their mysterious, unknown destiny.

I learned the basic lines on the palm of the hand, which is great for getting her to open up about herself.

I also learned handwriting analysis - which really works to tell you a person's personality.

Any one of these used in a conversation, where you are telling her about her possible future - or giving her insights about her personality - will be incredibly powerful as a magic moment magnet.

Strong, Silent Eye Contact

So few men do this one, but it's a killer when done right.

All you do is simply lock eyes with her, and hold it until she looks down and away.

Be careful not to look too intense - just soften your eyes a bit, but keep them locked on her.

You can also do the look-up, look-down, where you check her out from head to toe. Again, don't fall for that feminist bullshit about women not

- wanting to be treated like sex objects. She doesn't want to be treated like an object, but she definitely wants to be treated with sexual desire.

Magic Moment: Magic Tricks

Yeah, I know, this can seem a bit "gimmicky" - but if you've got the talent and enjoy this sort of thing, it works REALLY well.

I've got more information on this for you at:

<http://www.carlosxuma.com/hiroshima>

Magic Moment: Compliment her on her choices and positive attitude

One of the most effective things you can do is to compliment a woman - but in the right way.

This one is screwed up all the time, and kills attraction when it's the brainless "I want to flatter my way into your panties" compliment.

Good Examples:

- "I could talk to you all night..."
- "Your friends are great, but you're definitely the most attractive in your group..."
- "I like the way you think..."

BAD Examples:

- "You're so beautiful..."
- "You must have guys chasing you all the time..."
- "Your eyes are so gorgeous..."
- Ad nauseum...

Just use insight and compliment her on the unexpected and hard-to-see qualities, and you'll be amazed at the reaction you get.

Magic Moment: Give her an orgasm

Yeah, I know, sounds a bit ahead of the game here, but nothing says, "I'm the guy you want in your bed full-time" than giving her a sheet-shredding orgasm.

So knowing what you're doing in the sack is essential.

The first time you sleep with her, you want to make it memorable.

Again, so few men can really understand what to do to guarantee a woman an orgasm, but it's essential if you want to lock her in and keep her.

Now, this is not a sex education course, but I will recommend some for you later.

For now, one important thing to remember is you must keep her relaxed, and safe.

If she doesn't feel relaxed and safe with you, she will not want to "let herself go" enough to have an orgasm.

She'll either just work to get you off (this is NOT a good thing!) or she will just fake it.

Again, neither of those are desirable.

You want to be able to give her a fantastic sexual experience. And the honest truth is that you don't have to be THAT good.

Remember that the most recent sexual experience she has is always the freshest and most memorable - in her mind.

Give her what she desires, and she'll be yours...

Magic Moment: Cook her a killer dinner

This one is easy - if you have any kitchen experience.

Food is an essential element of our survival, and this makes it even more closely connected to our sexual desires.

Ask any woman and she'll agree that food is ... well, sexy.

So preparing a meal for her - at her place, or yours - is also very romantic and connecting.

It's also a bit of a cliché, so you want to understand how to make this work for you in the details:

- Have her bring wine and a dessert

She has to have some skin in the game.

- Use a simple, but tasty recipe

Don't go nuts. Go to Epicurious.com or any decent recipe site, pick something highly rated but easy to prepare.

And then follow that recipe EXACTLY.

- Make sure you know about any dietary restrictions

Find out if she's vegan, or can't eat peanuts, or is on a gluten-free diet, etc.

You want to make sure you don't hurt your game with a simple oversight.

- Don't forget the little touches

Use candles, nice plates and glasses, etc.

Don't go overboard, but make it look like you put some effort in. If you overdo it, you'll look a bit needy. So just make this look like it's something you could have done at anytime, but she's lucky enough to receive it.

Magic Moment: End the date/meeting early (but not awkwardly)

This has the benefit of employing all the good psychological principles of attraction. But it requires that you have the self-control to execute it.

When the time comes, you want to end your “moment’ with women (date, conversation, whatever) earlier than she would have chosen.”

The power of this “early withdrawal” is HUGE and nearly incalculable when it comes to creating that positive sexual tension you want with women.

All you have to do is check your phone, and look visibly disappointed.

You say, “Dangit. I gotta get going. But this has been really cool. I could sit here and talk to you all night long. Can I walk you to your car, or did you want to stay a bit longer?”

Simple, smooth, and confident.

If she asks you why you can’t stay longer, you just say: “Sorry, I’ve got an appointment. But I’m up for doing this again.”

Don’t promise anything, don’t try to lock in another meet-up or date.

Again, don’t be too abrupt with this. Just wait for a suitable moment when there’s a break in the conversation (preferably after you two have just laughed together about something.)

Then you end it and go.

Use the “open thread” method in the Get A Girlfriend Fast program to leave her with “unfinished business” and you can bet your 401K that she’ll be wanting another date.

I obey the first rule of show business: Always leave them wanting more.

And you should, too. It never hurts your standing with a woman - and almost ALWAYS improves it.

Always understay your welcome so that she wants a little bit more the next time.

Bonus Tip: Leave your ringer on, but ignore your cell phone if it rings.

Act like you didn't even hear it. Then ask her a question. This is demonstrating that you are enchanted with her presence, and she'll remember it.

So a lot of what I've been telling you to do here may sound like I'm saying that you should try to impress her. After all, you're trying to create these magic moments with her.

But the real key to all of this is: don't TRY to impress her.

Remember the two attitudes:
Interviewer, applicant.

Which one do you think has the most power in the dating game?

The interviewer does.

And that's why so many men fail with women. They immediately assume a role of "applicant" with every woman they meet.

"Please like me..." he says with his meek tone of voice.

"I'd do anything to have sex with you," his begging body language screams.

"I hope you approve of me, and if you think I did anything 'wrong,' I'll flip over in a heartbeat to make you want me," he tells her with his attitude.

Remember that the world assumes you are who you project. If you assume that applicant role with women, you're communicating lower status in many different areas of your life.

Magic Moments are all about getting her to see you as unique boyfriend material.

Stay Alpha!
